Dissertation

“The Gift of Death: Acts of Imagination in the Ritual of gCod”

This dissertation explores the role of imagination in a Tibetan Buddhist ritual in which the practitioner visualizes sacrificing her body to gods, demons, and all beings, in order to realize the Buddhist Perfections of Generosity and Wisdom – the realization of no-self. I analyze the role of imagination and memory as disciplinary practices in the ethical formation of the practitioner, examine the ways in which thinking and acting are intertwined in Tibetan visualization practices, and interrogate how the ritual can be understood as a “spiritual exercise” in the sense used by Pierre Hadot.
